We believe that the products you buy and use, those products that are in the environment in which you work, play, or frequent in your daily life, should be safe. Too often individuals are severely injured and disabled because a product manufacturer fails to warn an individual regarding the proper use of the product, as well as the hazards that may be associated with an accepted use of the product. Tragedies also occur when manufacturers of industrial equipment fail to properly guard individuals from dangers associated with the normal use of their equipment, or when corporate purchasers of industrial equipment remove safety guards and equipment that accompanies the product, thereby exposing workers and others to injury or death.

Suffering an injury or an economic loss because of a defective or unreasonably dangerous product entitles individuals to receive compensation. The sooner an individual takes action for the injuries or damages that may involve product liability laws, the better the opportunity there is to collect monetary damages. In these types of matters, timing is everything. The unfortunate reality is that after a victim is injured by a defective product, corporate entities (such as employers, manufacturers, distributors, and insurance companies) often attempt to minimize their liability by modifying the product or even discarding or destroying the product.

At Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, P.A., we utilize our resources and personnel, including investigators and engineers, to conduct a complete and thorough investigation of the incident and the product involved, in order to preserve evidence and determine if the personal injury or loss was the direct result of a defective product. We have the experience and resources necessary to prove liability and collect the compensation that is rightfully yours.
