

New Jersey Truck Accident Lawyers

Results achieved in prior matters are not meant to be a guarantee of success as the facts and legal circumstances vary from matter to matter.

As a corridor state, New Jersey has more trucks on its highways per square mile than virtually any other state in the country. Because of their size and weight, these trucks present the potential for serious injury or death, should an accident occur.

According to data collected from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, over 4,100 people died in large truck crashes on U.S. highways in 2017. Not surprisingly, 82% of these deaths involved occupants of passenger vehicles, pedestrians, bicyclists or motorcyclists. The victims who survive truck accidents often sustain very serious injuries, face complicated medical treatment, costly healthcare bills, and loss of income.

At Wilentz, we understand that truck accidents claims are unique. For example, accidents involving tractor trailers and trucks must be investigated immediately, as many involve out-of-state and foreign companies as well as violations of state and federal trucking industry standards. In addition, because special rules apply to large trucks using our highways, it is important that victims of truck accidents consult with an attorney who has the experience and resources necessary to effectively handle large truck claims.

Numerous elements should be considered to evaluate an accident involving a truck and the appropriate recovery for the victims. The condition and design of roadways, the actions of the drivers involved, the condition of their vehicles, weather conditions, actions of other vehicles, and several other factors may all play a part in the ultimate decision. If you are involved in a truck accident, you will want to have all of these circumstances put in their proper perspective by attorneys who have a wealth of experience in dealing with them. We have successfully represented scores of injured persons involved in accidents with trucks, and we are willing to bring this extensive experience to bear on your situation.

Why Do You Need an Experienced Truck Accident Lawyer?

In most auto accident cases, only two types of parties are involved: the driver who caused the crash, and the victim(s) of the other driver's negligence. Truck accidents, however, may involve numerous at-fault parties, including:

- Truck driver
- Tractor/trailer owner/lease
- Loader
- Truck Manager
- Government entity
- Driver's employer
- Shipper
- Broker
- Mechanic

To receive compensation after you have been injured or lost a loved one as the result of a collision with a tractor-trailer, you will need to establish that another party caused the accident. Different types of fault that can contribute to truck crashes include:

- Driver Fatigue
- Speeding
- Tailgating
- Sudden Braking
- Drug and Alcohol use
- Distracted Driving
- Improper Loading
- Negligent (or lack of) Maintenance
- Mechanical Defects

You may protect your rights and your claim for compensation for injuries caused by tractor trailers by contacting an experienced truck accident attorney at Wilentz as soon as possible. Our personal injury team will:
